

J. G. MOTEL

LOCATED ON HIGHWAY 6 - GRANT, CALIF.

A few hours drive over smooth highways brings you to the J. G. MOTEL at GRANT, California, located 188 miles from Los Angeles on Highway 6. The drive alone from Los Angeles to Grant is well worth the trip. It takes you through mountains and wooded Mint Canyon out on to the broad expanse of the Mojave Desert, through Red Rock Canyon with its varied and brilliant colored rock formations, and on through the desert out of which suddenly appears Little Lake, a contrasting sight to the desert wasteland surrounding it. A few more miles into the broad expanse of Owens Valley and there, nestling at the foot of the Sierra Nevada Mountains is the J. G. MOTEL at Grant, surrounded by the most spectacular scenery in California.

Here is a land of vivid contrasts; on one side, flat, desolate desert land and the gateway to Death Valley; and on the other side, majestic snow-covered mountains rising over 14,000 feet from the desert floor with an abruptness that is breath-taking.

But the scenery is not all you will enjoy. At the J. G. MOTEL you will find every comfort you would expect to find in the finest hotels. The J. G. MOTEL is set back from the highway to assure undisturbed rest. It is air-conditioned assuring cool comfort in the summer months, and hot-air furnace heat warms the rooms during the winter.

At the right is a partial view of one of the extra-large double rooms on the ground floor. Bright and cheery interiors and Beautyrest mattresses combine to assure happiness and comfort. These lower rooms have their own private baths and showers. Upstairs are five rooms with twin beds offering economical accommodations.
